News from your family at Richardton Health Center in Richardton

Looking for music!

In March, we had a visit from the Richardton-Taylor Public School Student Council. They crafted with residents and enjoyed each other's company.

Music is always a big hit here, so if you know of anyone who would be interested in performing for our residents, please have them reach out to us!

In March, we enjoyed music from The Dels, and a spontaneous performance from Tom Horn and Rady Clayton. Dennis and Nano, with their special guests, Inky Paulson and Jean Marcusen, sang for us during our St. Patrick's Day Celebration.

Every May, we celebrate National Nursing Home Week. This year's theme is "Radiant Memories, A Tribute to the Golden Age of Radio." We will incorporate live music into our week's activities, and we will have a photo display throughout this week to show our residents' "Radiant Memories." We are asking families to send a few photos, such as a childhood photo, graduation photo, wedding photo or family photos. I think everyone would really enjoy reminiscing about the photos.

We will kick off the week's celebration with a Mother's Day Tea for women at 2 p.m. Sunday, May 12. Please RSVP to Jessi how many guests your loved one will have attending.

We had to postpone the Easter egg hunt due to weather to 9:30 a.m. Saturday, April 6.

Sincerely, Jessi Schmidt, activities director

PHOTOS: We are enjoying spending time with our lifelike pets, which were recent purchases for our activities department. Activities aides Olivia and Grace stopped by in their prom dresses to visit with some residents before the prom!

In memoriam

We remember residents who have recently passed away and are grateful for the time we were able to spend with each. Thank you to their families for entrusting their care to the Richardton Health Center. This month, we remember Lydia Boltz.

The Richardton Healthcare Foundation welcomes donations anytime.

The Foundation board determines where to best utilize funds, so donations can be coupled with other funds to continually improve RHC's programs and services.

Fun and Games

In March, we had a visit from the Richardton-Taylor Public School Student Council. They crafted with residents and enjoyed each other's company. The students painted candy jars with the residents during the craft time. Thank you to all the students and other volunteers who visit with our residents to share your time and talents!
